Comprehensive Code	Component Code	Source	Rationale
25622	25259	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of the wrist joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 25259 is used to report wrist manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 25259 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 25259 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

25675	25259	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of the wrist joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 25259 is used to report wrist manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 25259 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 25259 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

25685	25259	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of the wrist joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 25259 is used to report wrist manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 25259 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 25259 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

25820	25259	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of the wrist joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 25259 is used to report wrist manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 25259 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 25259 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

26034	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

Comprehensive Code	Component Code	Source	Rationale

Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

26121	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

Comprehensive Code	Component Code	Source	Rationale
26160	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

Comprehensive Code	Component Code	Source	Rationale
26210	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

Comprehensive Code	Component Code	Source	Rationale
26260	26236	NCCI	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice

26455	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

26471	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. 26496	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

Comprehensive Code	Component Code	Source	Rationale

26554	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.

Comprehensive Code	Component Code	Source	Rationale
26555	26185	NCCI	NCCI HCPCS/CPT separate procedure definition

26725	26340	BCBST	NCCI Standards of medical / surgical practice / Incidental manipulation of a finger joint occurring at the time of the more definitive procedure is considered a part of the procedure. Code 26340 is used to report finger joint manipulation under anesthesia. It is typically performed to loosen up contractures that have developed after trauma. As such, it will usually be reported alone, or possibly in conjunction with another joint manipulation procedure for treatment of contractures. For those musculoskeletal system codes for which 26340 is a subset (such as fracture or dislocation treatment), manipulation of the finger joint in the course of performing the procedure is considered a part of the procedure, and 26340 should not be reported in addition to the definitive procedure to account for this inherent manipulation.
